Luther M. "Rusty" Dorr

SHAREHOLDER

Rusty's Profile

Rusty is a Shareholder and member of several practice groups in the Litigation Section at Maynard.

A major component of his practice is defending financial institutions against claims asserted in state and federal courts and arbitration proceedings nationwide. He has represented state and regional banks, investment banking firms, and several national brokerage firms in a wide variety of cases. He has represented financial services clients in litigation arising out of transactions involving consumer and commercial loans, securities offerings, and securities brokerage accounts. He also defends companies and corporate executives in securities class action litigation and investor litigation in state and federal court.

Rusty also devotes much of his practice to fiduciary litigation involving disputes arising out of trusts or estates. Often, this litigation involves defending bank trust departments who are sued by trust customers and beneficiaries or representing trustees who are neutral participants in disputes between trustees and beneficiaries. He also represents individuals and families in disputes involving the administration of trusts and estates. Best Lawyers® named Rusty the 2017 "Lawyer of the Year" for Trusts and Estates Litigation, a distinction given to only one attorney in each geographic area.

In addition to his primary practice areas, Rusty has represented clients in various technology-related litigation matters. He has represented two Chief Executive Officers of publicly traded companies in Internet defamation cases and has represented a company in a dispute over the ownership of an Internet domain name. He also represented an Alabama computer manufacturer in a commercial lawsuit against a large chip manufacturer involving antitrust and patent issues.

Rusty has also defended a number of cases filed as nationwide or
